Gate numbers matched with airplane spot numbers

As of September 27th, Kansai International Airport has matched passenger terminal building gate numbers to airplane spot numbers. Up until now, these numbers were different, which was an inconvenience to both pilots and customer service staff. By making the spot and gate numbers the same, this problem is resolved, which will lead to improved convenience for airport users. We have also posted airport information signs in Japanese, English, Korean, and Chinese in order to provide better service.
